Phase 1: Choose Your Advisors

As Mayor of New York City, you cannot do your job alone. You must choose a committee of advisors who will help you make critical, and often tough, decisions.

Pick your top three advisors by putting an X next to each name. Make your selection carefully, as you cannot take back a nomination.

_____ Small-Business Sammy

Sammy is the owner of a neighborhood diner. His restaurant survived the disaster but he lost a lot of business. Hoping to attract new customers, Sammy wants the new WTC to include both office buildings and apartments.

_____ Lisa, Representative of Victims' Families

Lisa's husband was killed on September 11, leaving her to raise their three children alone. She is campaigning to build a memorial in honor of the victims, which will cover a majority of the former WTC site.

_____ Big-Business Brenda

As owner of the WTC, Brenda is in favor of building several skyscrapers that would house some of the world's top businesses. She says big business will revive the faltering stock market and strengthen both the local and national economy.

_____ Neighborhood Association President Peter

As president of the neighborhood association, Peter acts as an advocate for area residents. He would like the sites to include parks and small businesses, such as grocery stores and Laundromats, that would serve the local community.

_____ Susie Student

Susie, a junior at the local high school, feels strongly that the site should include a memorial, but also supports dedicating part of the site to parks, where students could hang out after school.
