Storyboard

Available as a PDF at scholastic.com/scope

A storyboard is a series of illustrations and captions that help to organize and communicate a plot. Use the graphic organizer below to make a storyboard for the play in this issue of Scope, or for another piece of fiction you've read. First, choose the most important events in the story, paying careful attention to the sequence of events. Then, in each box below, draw a picture showing each of these events. Finally, write a caption for each scene in the spaces provided. Like any good story, your storyboard should have a beginning, a middle, and an end.
