The Five W's

When writing an article, reporters often use “The Five W’s” to make sure they don’t leave out any important facts. “The Five W’s” are: who, what, when, where, and why. In this activity, you will identify the main points of two articles from this issue’s Your World section.

Directions: Read the articles “Virtual Justice” and “Banner Book Deal!” on page 5. Then answer “The Five W’s” for both articles in the graphic organizer below.
