Letter Formation Cues for Lowercase and Uppercase Letters

The cues listed below serve as short prompts or reminders for students. Use them as they are or tailor them to match your teaching style, curriculum, and student needs. Encourage students to verbalize the cues as they form letters, especially those letters that are difficult to make or often turn out reversed.

<table>

Tip: Since the formation of many letters begins with the letter c, teach the letter c as early as possible.

Tip: Having students start at the top rather than the skyline works with both unlined and lined paper, whereas starting at the skyline might be confusing on unlined paper.

Tip: Having students make a c first helps prevent b and d reversals. Be sure students understand that trace means to go over part of a line that was already made.

Tip: Mentioning the little sideways v will prevent lowercase k from turning out to be a capital K.

Tip: Although lowercase o does not start at the top (as in where the skyline is), reminding students to start up high thwarts the action of starting o at the bottom and circling forward.
Letter Formation Cues for Capital Letters

Tips

- Tip: Point out to students that although t is a tall letter, it is not as tall as the other tall letters. You may want to refer to it as “teenager t.”
- Tip: Teach students what diagonal means.
- Tip: Repeatedly remind students that the short diagonal needs to go down low, not up at the top.
- Tip: Use the terms capital and upper-case interchangeably.
- Tip: Though it may seem easier to start at the bottom to make capital A, it is important to be consistent with starting letters at the top.
- Tip: Show students that they have to lift their pencils to hop to the top.
- Tip: Since students write capital I so frequently, you will have many opportunities to remind them to make all three lines as straight as they can.

Ideas for Introducing and Teaching Letter Names and Sounds

Work mainly with lowercase letters, as this is about 95% of what students will make use of while writing and encounter while reading. Present letters in their capital/lowercase pairing as often as possible (for example, on the picture alphabet, with flashcards, in student journals). Say the letter formation cues while modeling how to write letters and encourage students to say them while writing. Students will often repeat the cues to help them recall letter names.

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Aa</td>
<td>Introduce a as a word within the first two weeks, with either the /ä/ or /ã/ pronunciation. Discuss it as it appears in student names. Focus on it during an Apples theme (or other theme that begins with the letter a). “It’s the screaming letter. Make a (quiet) screaming sound.” To teach the two main sounds, have students repeat an ABAB pattern: /ät/, /ãt/, /ä/ /ã/ . . . If using the /ã/ pronunciation for the word a, constantly remind students that that is really letter u’s sound. Lowercase letter formation cue: “Make a c, up, down.” Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, down, across.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bb</td>
<td>Discuss it as it appears in student names. Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, trace it up, with a /b/, /b/ ball.” Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, hop to the top, bump, bump.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cc</td>
<td>Discuss it as it appears in student names. Students learn this letter when learning the formation cues for letters a (“Make a c, up, down.”), d (“Make a c, up really high, down.”), and g (“Make a c, up, down with a hook.”). To teach the two sounds, have students repeat an ABAB pattern: /s/, /k/, /s/, /k/. . . . Label and refer to /s/ as “soft c” and /k/ as “hard c.” Lowercase and uppercase letter formation cue: “Make a c.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dd</td>
<td>Discuss it as it appears in student names. Emphasize it during the month of December (calendar time). Lowercase letter formation cue: “Make a c, up really high, down.” The formation cue will help students remember that it is d, not b, that starts with a c. Also teach students to say, “You have to make a c if you want to make a d.” Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, hop to the top, bump.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ee</td>
<td>Discuss it as it appears in student names. Introduce it when the word the is introduced within the first two weeks. “You can call it the, or you can call it thē, but either way it’s spelled t-h-e.” To model the short-e sound, cup your ear and say, “Eh? Speak up! I can’t hear you!” To teach the two sounds, have students repeat an ABAB pattern: /e/, /ã/, /ē/, /ã/, . . . Lowercase letter formation cue: “Straight across and around.” Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, across, across, across.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ff</td>
<td>Discuss it as it appears in student names. Introduce it with the calendar and days of the week (Friday). Emphasize it during the month of February (calendar time). “Put your teeth on your bottom lip.” Lowercase letter formation cue: “Curve it around and down, then cross it.” Students often make a tall lowercase r and then cross it, so explicitly state that f does not have a stick on the side of it like r does. Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, hop to the top, across, across.”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Gg
Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Teach “Gee, that’s a cute goat!” (especially if your picture alphabet has a goat for g.)
This models the two sounds.
To teach the two sounds, have students repeat an ABAB pattern: /j/, /g/, /j/, /g/ . . .
Label and refer to /j/ as “soft g” and /g/ as “hard g.”
Have students feel the two different places in their mouths where the two different sounds are made.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Make a c, up, down with a hook.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Make a C, pull it in.”

Hh
Call Hh the breathing letter. Have students feel their breath on their hand as they breathe out and/or make panting sounds.
Introduce it when the word the is introduced within the first two weeks. “You can call it the, or you can call it thë, but either way it’s spelled t-h-e.”
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, trace it up, bump.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, down, across.”

Ii
Introduce I as a word within the first two weeks of school.
Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Tell students the dot on the lowercase I kind of looks like an eye.
Make students aware of the corners of their mouth going back for the short-i sound. Use the scaffold “corners back” to remind them of the sound.
To teach the two sounds, have students repeat an ABAB pattern: /˘i/, /-i/, /˘i/, /-i/ . . .
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, with a dot.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, all the way across, all the way across.”

Jj
Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down with a hook, dot.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down with a hook.”

Kk
Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, little tiny sideways v.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, big sideways v.”

Ll
Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Make students aware that their tongue will be up and behind their front teeth for this sound.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, across.”

Mm
Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Introduce it when the word me is introduced within the first two weeks. “I can make an m, and I can make an e; they spell a word, and the word is me.”
Introduce it with the calendar and days of the week (Monday).
Make students aware that their lips are together for this sound.
“Mmmm, that’s a yummy letter.”
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, trace it up, bump, bump.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, hop to the top, down, up, down.”
Remind students that lowercase m has bumps and that capital m has points.

Nn
Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Emphasize during the month of November (calendar time).
It’s the sound that an annoying insect makes as it flies around your face.
Cut out an n and put it in an envelope.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, trace it up, bump.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, hop to the top, down, up.”

| Oo | Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Emphasize it during the month of October (calendar time).
Have students trace the round, o shape of their mouths as they make the short-o sound.
To teach the two sounds, have students repeat an ABAB pattern: /ə/ /ə/, /ɒ/ /ɒ/, .
(This sounds just different enough from uh-oh, uh-oh that students will remember it.)
Lowercase and uppercase letter formation cue: “Circle back, close it up perfectly.” |
| Pp | Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Make students aware that they are pushing a puff of air between their lips.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, trace it up, with a circle.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, hop to the top, bump.” |
| Qq | Discuss it if it appears in student names.
Explicitly teach students to make /k/ quickly followed by /w/.
Have students visualize a queen with a tail. This will help them remember that both the lowercase and uppercase versions have a tail.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Make a c, up, down with a tail.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Circle back, close it up perfectly, add a tail.” |
| Rr | Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Emphasize it while teaching the r-e-d song. “r-e-d, red, r-e-d, red, I can spell red, I can spell red. Fire trucks are red, stop signs are red, too. r-e-d, red, r-e-d, red.”
Have students put their hands on an imaginary steering wheel, pretend they are driving, and make the rrr sound.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, trace it up with a curve.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, hop to the top, bump, stick.” |
| Ss | Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Introduce/emphasize it during the month of September (calendar time).
Introduce it with the calendar and days of the week (Saturday, Sunday).
Emphasize it as the words is and see are taught within the first few weeks of school.
It’s a hissing sound, as if air is being released.
Lowercase and uppercase letter formation cue: “Forward c, backward c.”
Teach students to see the difference between a forward c and a backward c. |
| Tt | Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Make students aware of their tongue hitting the back of their teeth.
Introduce it when the word the is introduced within the first two weeks. “You can call it the, or you can call it thë, but either way it’s spelled t-h-e.”
Introduce it with the calendar and days of the week (Tuesday).
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, cross it.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, all the way across.” |
| Uu | Discuss it as it appears in student names.
If using the /u/ pronunciation for the word a, constantly remind students that that is really the letter u’s sound.
It’s the sound we make if we get punched in the stomach; have students pretend to punch themselves and say, “Ugh!”
To teach the two sounds, have students repeat an ABAB pattern: /ʌ/ /ʌ/, /ʊ/ /ʊ/, .
(Start with the long-u sound on the pattern so it matches the exercise below.)
Students can point to others and say, “You a girl,” or “You a boy” to hear both sounds.
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Down, curve it up, and down.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, curve it up.” |

“Teeth on bottom lip.”
Call this the tickly letter because holding the sound definitely tickles the lower lip.
Lowercase and uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, up.” |
| Ww     | Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Introduce it with the calendar and days of the week (Wednesday).
Call this letter “wubble-you” to emphasize the /w/ sound. Be sure to mention its actual name often.
Lowercase and uppercase letter formation cue: “Down, up, down, up.” |
| Xx     | Discuss it if it appears in student names.
Explicitly teach and help students to coordinate /k/ quickly followed by /s/.
Use the phrase, “Let’s put an x by . . .” or “X marks the spot” to teach the letter.
Lowercase and uppercase letter formation cue: “Diagonal line, diagonal line.”
Teach students what diagonal means. |
| Yy     | Discuss it as it appears in student names.
Emphasize it when teaching the color words (yellow).
Emphasize it when teaching the word you via the Happy Birthday song. “Happy birthday to y-o-u . . .”
If a student cannot remember the name of this letter, have him or her say, “Why can’t I remember this letter?”
Lowercase letter formation cue: “Short line, long line.”
Uppercase letter formation cue: “Make a V up high and down.” |

It’s the snoring sound or the sound of a zipper going up and down or the sound a buzzing bee makes.
Lowercase and uppercase letter formation cue: “Across, diagonal, across.”
Teach students what diagonal means. |
| th     | Discuss these letters as they appear in student names.
Call these letters “The Bad Boys” because they make you stick out your tongue.
Make students aware that their tongue will protrude slightly between their teeth.
Introduce it with the calendar and days of the week (Thursday).
Introduce it when the word the is introduced within the first two weeks. “You can call it the, or you can call it thē, but either way it’s spelled t-h-e.” |
| sh     | Discuss these letters as they appear in student names.
Call these letters “The Good Boys” because they help us be quiet.
Put your index fingers to your lips whenever you make the sound as a scaffold. |
| ch     | Discuss these letters as they appear in student names.
Call these letters “The Chilly Boys.” (Emphasize ch-ch-chilly.)
Emphasize it during the month of March (calendar time). |
| oo     | Discuss these letters if they appear in student names.
Call these letters “The Icky Triplets” (oo, ew, and ue) or the “oo chunk.”
Introduce around Halloween time with the word boo. |
| ing    | Refer to these letters as the “ing chunk.”
Introduce mid-school year, around the time of Martin Luther King, Jr. day. |
| blends | Begin explicitly teaching blends mid-school year when students can better understand the concept of two distinct sounds being blended together. Point out blends and emphasize them as they appear in student names, units of study (snow, spring), and words in books. |

Directions for Making the Emergent Books

- Print the pages for the book you want to make.
- Customize each book as suggested below. You can see samples or descriptions of some of these books on the corresponding pages (shown in parentheses) in Teaching Reading in Kindergarten.
- Copy enough pages so each student will have a book, and cut them apart.
- Assemble the books and staple in the upper left-hand corner.

I (page 72): Decide which verbs to include on each page of the book. Add pictures or photos of someone doing that action. Write the verb on the blank.

I Am and I See My Classmates: Glue a photo of each student in a box. Write his or her name in the blank.

```
I am Jonathon.
I am Angel.
```

```
I see Emma looking at me.
I see Chantye looking at me.

Boo! (page 47): Add pictures of an animal or a person to each interior page of the book. Write what that animal or person would say on the last page.

What Is It? (page 47): Decide which words you want to spotlight on each set of pages. Write the answer to the riddle in the blank.

Apples: Have students read the text to find out which color to use for each set of apples. Note that this template creates one book.
The following books are assembled differently.

The Color Book (page 68): Each set of pages will make one book. Copy, cut apart, and assemble as described above. Then have students color the pictures with the correct color.

Apples Up on Top (page 47): Cut sheets of 9 inches by 18 inches black construction paper in half so you can give each student a sheet that measures 4½ inches by 18 inches. Create a page in the book for each student: Write each student’s name and a specific number of apples on a sheet. Glue the completed text on the bottom at the bottom and a photo of each student above it. Let students color, cut out, and glue the number of apples specified on their page “up on top” of their photos. Compile students’ finished pages. Glue the title on a sheet of construction paper and create an Apples Up on Top book.
