

Patrick Daley

Senior Vice President,
Scholastic Education (SCCG)

Patrick can help you with:

Consulting on struggling readers and reading intervention solutions

Engagement and motivation

Designing balanced literacy solutions

Patrick Daley is a nationally known literacy expert, as well as an advocate for disengaged readers—and for the teachers who teach them.

In his role as Senior Vice President, Scholastic Education, Patrick leads initiatives that support academic engagement and literacy for all students. He has collaborated with numerous education thought leaders including, Dr. Alfred Tatum, Ruth Culham, Laura Robb, Irene Fountas, and Gay Su Pinnell. Most notably, he led the development of Scholastic's READ 180—America's most successful intervention program.

Patrick earned his BA in Elementary Education from the University of Vermont and an Ed M in Reading and Language from Boston University. He has served as a classroom teacher and reading specialist.
