

Lanette Reese-Jones

Executive Director of Education Partnerships, International Center for Leadership in Education (ICLE)

Lanette can help you with:

- Comprehensive school improvement
- Leadership development
- Data-driven strategic planning

Equipped with result-driven methodologies, Lanette Reese-Jones works with teachers and school leaders to plan out sustainable programming. She strongly believes in exceeding her clients' expectations, which is why she follows up each diagnosis with evaluation and feedback post-implementation. Her thorough and thoughtful analysis ensures strategic focus and success.

As Sustainability Manager at Communities in Schools of Philadelphia, Lanette worked with 11 Small Community Grant schools and 11 high school leadership teams to design and implement sustainable initiatives. She also analyzed and reviewed grant data with high school leadership teams to help drive their progress toward grant goals. Her commitment doesn't end there; Lanette served as Assistant Director in the Office of Secondary School Reform for the School District of Philadelphia, where she managed the dual-enrollment program in 62 Philadelphia high schools. Lanette also spent three years in program development with Communities in Schools of Philadelphia, where she showed a tireless commitment to creating a positive academic environment for teen mothers and fathers.

Lanette holds two graduate degrees: the first, in Higher Education Leadership and Management from Drexel University, and the second, a Community and Regional Planning degree from Temple University. She moved to Philadelphia in 2002 after receiving her undergraduate degree from Notre Dame College of Ohio.